

Source Manifest

This document provides an overview of the source files used to create this digital analytic edition.

Provenance

The source files originate from the Cookbooks and Cooking Bookshelf

(https://www.gutenberg.org/wiki/Cookbooks\_and\_Cooking\_\(Bookshelf\))) of Project Gutenberg .

Their individual links are shown in Table 1. Files names were edited to include short information on the author, year, and book title.

Location

The current location of these can be found in two locations:

- A GitHub site, <https://github.com/brigittehogan/DS5001-Text-Analytics>
- A UVA Drop Box, DS5001_Final_Project
(<https://virginia.app.box.com/folder/111689365428>), in the Cookbooks folder
(<https://virginia.app.box.com/folder/111691154769>)

Format

The source files are all plain text UTF-8 files, saved with 'txt' extension.

Description

This corpus includes cookbooks and housekeeping guides published between 1830 and 1923 (Table 2). Specific files were chosen to broadly cover the mid 1800s to early 1900s, while also allowing for exploration of subtopics and individual authors. Two works were chosen to represent each of the following subtopics: war-time cooking (book IDs 15464 and 32472), curry dishes (book IDs 38464 and 34107), and housekeeping (books IDs 12519 and 28681). Multiple works by Thomas J. Murrey (book IDs 24205, 24542, 25007, 38464, and 53521) and the Woman's Institute of Domestic Arts and Sciences (book IDs 9935 – 9939) were selected to explore variations within works of the same author. A brief overview of each author is provided in Table 3.
